The Two Vanrevels

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "The Gentleman from Indiana" and "Monsieur Beaucaire"

Copyright, 1902, by S. S. McClure Co.

All these and others of the town were wont to "talk politics" a great deal at the little club on Main street, and all were apt to fall foul of Tom Vanrevel or Crailley Gray before the end of any discussion. For those were the days when they twisted the lion's tail in vehement and bitter earnest, when the eagle screamed in mixed figures, when few men knew how to talk and many orated, when party strife was savagely personal, when tolerance was called the "pure fire of patriotism," when criticism of the existing order of things scarcely incurred fiery anathemas and black liveries, and brave was he, indeed, who dared to hint that his country was a whole and politically did lack some two or three particular virtues and that the first step toward obtaining them would be to help it to realize their absence.

This latter-point of view was that of the men of Gray & Vanrevel, which was a mild in such matters. Crailley did most of the talking, quite beautifully, too, and both had to stand against odds in many a sour argument, for they were not only abolitionists, but opposed the methods of their country in its difficulty with Mexico, and, in common with other men of the time who took their stand, they had to grow accustomed to being called disloyal traditions, foreign traitors, malignants and traitors of the flag. Tom had long been used to epithets of this sort, suffering their sting in quiet, and was glad when he could keep Crailley out of worse employment than standing firm for an unpopular belief.

There was one place to which Van-revel, seeking his friend and partner when the latter did not come home at night, could not go. This was the tower chamber, and it was in that mysterious apartment of the Carewe couple that Crailley was apt to be deeply occupied when he remained away until daylight. Strange as it appears, Mr.
Gray maintained peculiar relations of intimacy with Robert Carewe in spite of the feud between Carewe and his own best friend. This intimacy, which did not necessarily imply any mutual fondness, though Crailley seemed to dislike nobody, was betokened by a further understanding of a sort between them. They held brief, earnest conversations on the street or in corners when they met at other people's houses, always speaking in voices too low to be overheard, and they exercised a mysterious influence, somewhat in the manner of fellow members of a secret society. They had been observed to communicate across crowded rooms by lifted eyebrow, nod of head or surreptitious turn of the wrist, so that those who observed them knew that a question had been asked and answered.

It was noticed also that there were five other intimates to the mystery-ous friendship of the elder Chenoweth's. General Trumble, Tappanham Marsh and Jefferson Barcard. Thus on the afternoon following Miss Betty's introduction to Robert Carewe's sons and daughters Mr. Carewe, driving down Main street, held up one forefinger to Madison as he saw the young man turning in at the club.
Rugene nodded gravely and as he went others listening to Mr. Gray's explanation of his return from the river with his fish, steadily held up one finger in his turn. Trumble replied with a wink, Tappanham nodded, but Crailley slightly shook his head. Marsh and the general started with surprise and stared incredulously. That Crailley should shake his head! If the signal had been for a church meeting they might have understood.

Mr. Gray's conduct was surprising two other people at about the same time—Tom Vanrevel and Fanchon Barcard; the former by his sudden devotion to the law; the latter by his sudden devotion to herself. In a breath he became almost a domestic character.

Miss Barcard was even happier than she was astonished—and she was wondering how to flatter her betrothed developing a taste for her society alone. Formerly she had counted upon the gaieties of her home to keep Crailley near her; now, however, he told her tenderly he wished to leave her all to himself. This was not like him, but Fanchon did not question.

The Barcard house was the most hospitable in town. Mrs. Barcard, a southerner, loving to persuade the visitor that her home was his, not hers, lived only for her art, which was that of the table. Mr. Barcard at fifty had lived so well that he gave up walking, which did not trouble him, but at sixty he gave up dancing, which did trouble him. His only hope, he declared, was in Crailley Gray's promise to invent for him a convalescent partner.

There was a thin, quizzing shank of a man, Jefferson, who lived upon quil-line, aqua and deviltry, and there were the two daughters, Fanchon and Virginia. The latter was three years older than Fanchon, as dark as Fanchon was fair, though not nearly so pretty, a small, good natured, romping spirit of a girl who had headed down the heart and hand of Crailley Gray to her sister with the best grace in the world.
For she had been the heroine of one of Mr. Gray's half dozen or so most serious affairs, and after a furious rivalry with Mr. Carewe the victory was generally conceded to Crailley. His triumph had been of about a fortnight's duration when Fanchon returned from St. Mary's, and with the advent of the younger sister the elder, who had declared that Crailley was the incomparable she had dreamed of since infancy, was generally allowed to discover to that he was not that vision; that she had fallen in love with her own idea of him, whereas Fanchon cared only that he be Crailley Gray.

To be in love with Crailley became Fanchon's vocation. She spent all her time at it and produced a blurred effect upon strangers. Nor was she alone in suspecting Mr. Gray of gon-gus. In the first place, he was so odd; in the second, his poems were "already strange more than local attention," as the Journal remarked generously, for Crailley had ceased to present his rhymes to that valuable paper. Aye, Boston no less was his mart.

He was rather radical in his literary preferences and hurt the elder Chenoweth's feelings by laughing heartily at some poems of the late Lord Byron, offended many people by disliking the style of Sir Edward Bulwer and even refused to admit that James Fenimore Cooper was the greatest novelist that ever lived. But these things were as nothing compared with his unpolitical defense of Charles Dickens. Many Americans had fallen into a great rage over the vivacious assault upon the United States in "Martha Chuzzlewit." Nevertheless Crailley still boldly hailed him, as every one had heretofore agreed, the most dexterous writer of his day and the most notable humorist of any day. Of course the Englishman had not visited and thoroughly studied such a city as Ropen, Crailley confessed truthfully; but, after all, wasn't there some truth in "Martha Chuzzlewit"? Mr. Dickens might have been far from a clear understanding of our people, but didn't he argue a pretty ticklish issue in ourselves that we were so sorely respectful of satire, and was not this very heat over "Martha

BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS.

All the Vowels in One Word.
There are but six words in the English language which contain all the vowels in regular order—viz, abominable, ingenious, amiable, fugious, malicious and tragical. There is but one word which contains them in regular reverse order, and that word is duodecimo. Besides the above there are 140 English words which contain all the vowels in irregular order. Twelve of these begin with the letter a, seven with b, twenty-three with c, sixteen with d, fourteen with e, four with f, seven with g, one with h, six with i, two with j, two with k, two with l, two with m, two with n, two with o, two with p, two with q, two with r, two with s, two with t, two with u, two with v.

Peppermint.
The preparation of peppermint is especially an American industry. The peppermint is cut when in bloom, like dried, placed in close wooden vats and steamed. The oil rises to the top and is skimmed off. The steam, which is condensed and collected into a receiver, where the oil rises and is skimmed off. It takes about 250 pounds of dry peppermint to produce one pound of oil. An acre of peppermint yields from six to ten pounds of oil, often more, even as high as fifty pounds.

Dickens' Gay Clothes.
We were walking down Wellington street, and just passing the old-fashioned World, when a handsome, well-dressed gentleman, in a bright green coat, vivid scarlet tie and patent leather shoes, with his trousers would have been no more than a common sight, but the size of the buttons on his buttonhole riveted my attention. It was a regular flower garland, and I was stopped and introduced to a man, who had only seen Dickens in the MacLise portrait and a very good one, was astonished to find that the man's hands with the long fingers and the "Dickensian" smile were the same.

Gilded Man.
At the headwaters of the Orinoco the Spaniards located the land of El Dorado, "The Gilded Man," a potentate whose country was so rich in gold dust that he had his body anointed with oil and sprinkled with gold every morning. As that he shows in the sun as a golden disk. It is a curious fact that the country in which tradition located this marvelous being has never been explored by a white man.

Monkey's Face.
"Kamala" is the popular name of the red dye produced from the glands of the mature fruit of a tree named "Mimus pudica," which is also called "monkey face tree" because monkeys paint their faces red by rubbing them with the fruit. Here is a striking instance of the influence of heredity.—Madras Mail.

Observation.
To behold is not necessarily to observe, and the power of comparing and combining is only to be obtained by education. It is much to be regretted that habits of exact observation are not cultivated in our schools. To this deficiency may be traced much of the fallacious reasoning and the false philosophy which prevail.—W. Humboldt.

A GRUESOME FIND.

The Skeleton of an Unknown

Man Discovered Near Town.

Supposed to be Charles Miller and Evidence Points to Murder by Two Men.

While Judge H. F. Davis and

George Huys were cutting some timber on the hill just below the lower end of branch on last Tuesday they found the skeleton of a man lying on the upper side of a large tree on a steep bluff.

The clothing had all rotted or disappeared, except the coat and shoes. From the appearance of the coat the man came to his death by a bullet wound. Judge H. F.

Davis summoned a jury and held an inquest and the jury, after viewing and making a search of the remains, returned the following verdict:

We, the jury, summoned to investigate into the cause of the death of an unknown man whose remains were found on the hill just below the lower end of branch, about one-half mile from the town limits, find as follows: The flesh had all rotted away and the skeleton had fallen to pieces, and no paper or other evidences could be ascertained. We found evidence from the coat sufficient to convince us that the man had come to his death by a gun shot wound, and from a 10 cent coin dated 1902, we find that he came to his death since 1902, and that his name, or the cause of his death, is unknown to us, and, judging from the appearance of his teeth and other parts of his skeleton, he was a man past fifty years of age.

We found that seven of his ribs had been fractured at some previous time and had healed, and that five of his upper and five of his lower teeth had been lost some time before his death.

The Irish Rain.
I must allow that it sometimes rains in Ireland, but Irish rain is not quite like other rain. It is, as a rule, softer than rain elsewhere, and if the truth must be told I like rain so long as one has not to say, "For the rain it rained every day." Irish weather is not so much capricious as English. It likes to plague you, if but to prepare you to enjoy the more its sunny, sparkling mood. It will weep and wail all night, and, to the next morning, Ireland is one sweet smile and seems to say: "Is it raining I was yesterday? Ah, then, I'll rain no more." And the suns leap and laugh, and the pastures and very stone walls glisten; the larks enroll on their celestial journey; there is a pungent, healthy smell of drying peat; the mountains are all dimpled with the joy of life and sunshine; the lake lies perfectly still, content to reflect the overhanging face of heaven, and just won't your honor buy the stoutest pair of homemade hose from a barefooted, bareheaded daughter of deposed kings with eyes like dewdrops and a voice that would charm the coil out of the most droll Irishman? If on such occasions as these you do not lose your heart to Ireland it must be made of stern, unimpressionable stuff indeed.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Pirating Foley's Honey and Tar.
Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the same. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds. Jackson Drug Co.

Strictly Business.
"May I ask if I am in the market for a bit for your affections?" asked the youth who did everything in a business-like way.
"You must go to far before I can take any stock in your offer," answered the doubtful broker's daughter.—Baltimore American.

The Martyr.
Polly—So Mrs. Higmore's husband has developed bad habits. How did you hear about it? Polly—Oh, Mrs. Higmore invited us all to an afternoon tea, so she could tell us how she suffered in silence.—Brooklyn Eagle.

She Knew Best.
Visitor—Tell me now, professor, are you suffering much from your headache? Professor (to his wife)—May, Amelia, do I suffer much from my headache?—Folger's Blatter.

One Minute Cough Cure contains no atom of any harmful drug and it has been curing coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough so long that it has proven itself to be a tried and true friend to the many who use. No need to fear of your child choking from croup. One Minute Cough Cure handy in all cases. Jackson Drug Co.

About the Fern.
I have a fern in my house and I think it is a very nice one. I have a fern in my house and I think it is a very nice one. I have a fern in my house and I think it is a very nice one.

They never gripe or clobber, but cleanse and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. This is the universal verdict of the many thousands who use Dr. King's Little Early Risers. Jackson Drug Co.

A Compliment.
"What did he say when you told him he was the worst liar you ever knew?" "He merely remarked that he had been flattered before."—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

A man endowed with great perfection without good breeding is like one who has his pockets full of gold, but always wants change for his ordinary occasions.—Riddle.

Sick Headache.
This distressing ailment results from a disordered condition of the stomach. All that is needed to effect a cure is a dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. In fact, the attack may be warded off or greatly lessened in severity, by taking a dose of these tablets as soon as the first symptoms of an attack appears. Sold by the Jackson Drug Co.

There Was Cause.
"Have you fastened the windows, dear?" she asked as they were about to retire for the night.
"No. What's the use? I gave you the last dollar I had to buy that hat, and we need not four burglars."

Afraid of Strong Medicines.
Many people suffer for years from rheumatic pains, and prefer to do so rather than take the strong medicines usually given for rheumatism, not knowing that quick relief from pain may be had simply by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm and without taking any medicine internally. For sale by the Jackson Drug Co.

FOUND.
John W. Dean had a pain in his back for about five years and it finally became so great that he could not work. In fact, could not walk at times. Several physicians failed to cure him, but he found a remedy. It was Smith's Kidney and Nerve Tonic. For sale by S. H. Stidham & Son, Jackson, Ky.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Cures Cough, Croup and Whooping Cough.

Charles Lamb and Tobacco.
Charles Lamb, according to his own confession, was "a fierce smoker of tobacco." One day when puffing vigorously the conest weed from a long clay pipe in company with Dr. Parr the latter asked him how he managed to acquire this "prodigious power." "By telling after it, as some men tell after virtue," was the prompt reply. As he advanced to this point, however, "Ellis" was obliged to relax his intimacy with the weed, so that, to use his own words, he was "like a burnt out volcano emitting now and then only a casual puff." Eventually he took his formal leave in a "Purveyor of Tobacco," and in forwarding a copy of the poem to Wordsworth he writes: "I have had it in my head to do it these two years, but tobacco stood in its own light when it gave me headaches that prevented the singing its praises."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy The Mother's Favorite.
The soothing and healing properties of this remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and as it contains no opium or other harmful drug, it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by the Jackson Drug Co.

The Missouri Pacific Railway Co.
St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Co.
Special round trip Homesecker's excursion tickets will be on sale first and third Tuesdays of January and February, 1906, to vast territory in Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Arkansas, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory at a rate of less than one fare for the round trip from St. Louis. Avail yourself of this rare opportunity to visit the country which is now attracting the attention of the Homesecker and Investor. For descriptive literature and further information address: H. C. Townsend, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

For Biliousness and Sick Headache.
Take Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup. It sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and acts as a gentle stimulant on the liver and bowels without irritating these organs. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures biliousness and habitual constipation. Does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Remember the name Orino and refuse to accept any substitute. Jackson Drug Co.

Bright Answers.
"Noah's wife" wrote a boy in an examination, "was called John of Arc." "Water," wrote another, "is composed of two gases, oxygen and cambrige." "Lava," said a third, "is what the barber puts on your face." "A blizzard," declared another child, "is the inside of a fowl."

The Distinction.
"Do you say that as a lawyer or a man?" exclaimed an exasperated witness whom a lawyer was cross-examining. "If you say it as a man, it is a lie and a slander, but if you say it as a lawyer it is not of the slightest consequence."—London Telegraph.

Fear is implanted in us as a preservative from evil, but its duty, like that of other passions, is not to overbear reason, but to assist it.—Johnson.

All old-time cough syrups bind the bowels. This is wrong. A new idea was advanced two years ago in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. This remedy acts on the mucous membrane of the throat and lungs and loosens the bowels at the same time. It expels all cold from the system. It clears the throat, strengthens the mucous membranes, relieves coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, etc. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

Plasticine Lanterns.
The puff or swell fish has the power to distend itself with air into the shape of a globe. Japanese living in the Hawaiian Islands make of the skin of the big puff fish in Hawaiian waters an old and grotesque lantern. When the skin of the big puff fish has been removed while it is still soft it is stuffed out to its full size in globe shape and so left to dry. The skin is not much thicker than paper and translucent brown on the upper part and gray below. The fins are preserved and dried sticking out from the fish, the tail being perked up at an angle. A circular opening is made in the back, through which the light can be placed and in which is set horizontally a hoop or rim by which the lantern can be suspended. Such a lantern made of a big puff fish's skin may be a foot in diameter crosswise and fifteen inches in length, and what with the head of the fish appearing at one end and the perked up tail at the other and the fins projecting at the sides this fish skin lantern makes a very curious object.—New York Herald.

Startling, But True.
People the world over were horrified on learning of the burning of a Chicago theater in which nearly six hundred people lost their lives, yet more than five times this number or over 3,000 people died from pneumonia in Chicago during the same year, with scarcely a passing notice. Every one of these cases of pneumonia resulted from a cold and could have been prevented by the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. A great many who had every reason to fear pneumonia have been saved by the prompt use of this remedy. The following is an instance of this sort: "Too much cannot be said in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and especially for colds and influenza. I know that it cured my daughter, Laura, of a severe cold and I believe saved her life when she was threatened with pneumonia." W. D. Wilson, Logan, N. Y. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.
